I also vote to allow the sale of QRP items on this list. QRP is still pretty fragile; a little extra tolerance can go a long way to increasing its popularity and understanding.

BTW, I was VERY impressed by the number of Q stations operating in the ARRL SSB SS. I heard exceptional signals from Minn and Colorado - It has given me thoughts of QRP for next year's SS myself... (although I haven't the antenna system to compete with the signals I heard this year!)

Fine by me - always interesing to see prices, so long as it is QRP gear and doesn't swamp the technical discussion items.

(Now, if only we could send _matter_ over the Internet....)

I vote YES. I'd rather sell/buy something from a friend in the qrp list than anywhere else.

I agree with Mike Czuhajewski. I only have e-mail access to internet, and so cannot access rec.radio.*; e-mail on this and other reflectors is my only way to find out what's for sale. Through this reflector I've purchased several items, and have been very happy with the results. Keep the ads coming!

For sale ads (and want ads) have been posted on our list since its first week of birth. We only get one or two per week so there's really no reason to consider a vote - they've always been part of the list. Our sister list, Boatanchors, will receive at least a half dozen per day (it's enjoyable to see what that older stuff is valued at). Looks as if I'm about

Hi,

Finally bagged the fox,KI0G,last nite. Conditions weren't great but I pulled Bob out of the noise. Even got the reports thru the QSB.

My vote on FOR SALES? I like the QRP being listed here as it gives us a chance before the r.r.s crowds get them, but I think it should be limited to QRP related items. BTW, anyone got a E.F. Johnson Matchbox they want to sell (fat chance).

Still awaiting my Sierra, and I'm getting anxious. Are the last ones on their way Wayne? My Norcal-40 won't tune 7.110 so I had to fox hunt with my 850, at 5 watts of course.

I vote YES, allow the 4sale listings. No reason not to, as long as its QRP related and the email transacting the sale is taken offline. There is negligible traffic, I don't think qrp-l will turn into rec.radio.swap.

I've missed qrp-l mail for awhile... Does disallowing 4sale listings include things like the NorCal announcements, the Millwatt reprints, sales at OHR, the Epiphyte kits, etc?

I vote YES, allow the 4sale/trade listings. No reason not to, as long as its

I hope that if we go to a no-sale it won't prevent listings like the NorCal announcements, the Millwatt reprints, sales at OHR, the Epiphyte kits, or our relationship Dave Benson, et al.

Thanks for listening

I guess the cat is out of the bag! Yes, I've accepted the position of technical editor for the QRP Quarterly and will be going over all the submitted articles to prepare them for the upcoming editions.

Just a couple of words to the authors of any articles, I can and will accept input in any legible form, though my preference leans towards electronic forms rather than hard-copy on paper. Diagrams and pictures can be in either paper or electronic form. (I can accept DOS disks in plain ASCII for the text, graphics can be in most any common graphics format.)

To submit articles for the QRP Quarterly either mail your paper manuscript or disks to:

or e-mail to:

raymond.anderson@sun.com

or anonymous ftp to:

(be sure to e-mail me so that I know something has arrived)

In addition I'll be perusing the net and mail list for interesting technical discussions and may be asking permission to publish these technical tid-bits from time to time.

Seems to me we're already doint it, sort of. A few months ago, for example, I sold a bunch of qrp gear via the "forsale" group, and someone posted a pointer to that notice here. And a while back we   traded offers to buy and to sell Plessy dbm's. I'm sure there are many other examples.

Guess my vote would be to permit buy/sell/trade notices as long as they deal EXCLUSIVELY with qrp gear.

I vote YES, I can't see any problem trading QRP equipment on the list. But why not put the ad on r.r.s. as well - could be a kind of promotion for the QRP activity, maybe saving a QRO soul.

I would like to continue to see buy/sell announcements. One of the many good uses of this list SHOULD be to help us make the most of our limited personal finances. Doing business among ourselves, and at the market price (no more and no less), will help us to do just that.
I have purchased items from members of this list, as well as the Boatanchors list, and am very happy I did.

If anyone wants to buy my MFJ-9030 or HW-8, I'd be happy to let them go cheap. First offer over $ 200 for either one gets it. :)
